

GLP-1 & Peptide Partnership Readiness Checklist

A practical pre-launch checklist to help your practice evaluate whether you are ready to add or scale a provider-directed wellness program, the right way.

1. Clinical & Regulatory Foundations

- Confirm which providers are licensed and operating within their scope of practice.
- Establish a clear clinician sign-off and patient-intake process for every program.
- Document contraindication screening and hard-stop criteria (e.g., pregnancy, certain conditions).
- Confirm your understanding of the current regulatory status of any compounded or non-FDA-approved products.
- Define how you will avoid making efficacy, safety, or FDA-approval claims in marketing.

2. Sourcing & Fulfillment

- Verify you have a reliable, licensed pharmacy relationship for fulfillment.
- Map the ordering workflow from provider portal to patient delivery.
- Set expectations for turnaround times and back-up options for supply variability.
- Establish quality and documentation standards for everything you dispense.

3. Operations & Workflow

- Assign clear owners for ordering, follow-up, and patient communication.
- Build a simple onboarding path so new staff can run the program confidently.
- Decide how adherence and follow-up reminders will be handled.
- Identify the operational steps you want a partner to handle for you.

4. Program & Revenue Model

- Define your core program lines and who they are for.
- Design continuity-based structures that support recurring, predictable revenue.
- Set transparent patient pricing and your partnership economics.
- Decide how you will measure program retention over time.

5. Patient Experience & Trust

- Create clear, compliant patient education materials.
- Establish a professional intake and consultation experience.
- Plan how you will build long-term trust, not one-time transactions.
- Set up a feedback loop to continually improve the experience.
